“...a lawyer who has advised me well and who has courageously advanced the cause of justice, and improved life opportunities, for hundreds of millions of women, blacks and disadvantaged, worldwide.” Nelson Mandela.¹

Dr. Ann Olivarius is the Chair of McAllister Olivarius, a leading firm in the US and UK representing victims of sexual misconduct and discrimination in employment and institutions, including universities and hospitals. She is also Managing Partner of AO Advocates, a firm specializing in child abuse. Upon graduating from Yale, Ann studied at Oxford on a Rhodes Scholarship (one of the first women ever selected), then returned to Yale to earn a dual JD and MBA degree. After developing her corporate finance skills in the Mergers & Acquisitions departments of Morgan Stanley and Goldman Sachs, Ann’s career included service as a strategic advisor for Perot Systems and as head of the corporate department in the Washington, D.C., office of Shearman & Sterling. Ann was deeply involved in designing the landmark civil rights case, Alexander v. Yale, establishing sexual harassment law for universities in the US. She has been honored by The American Civil Liberties Union, YaleWomen, and the British academic journal Nature. As a philanthropist, Ann has served on the Boards of Women Moving Millions, openDemocracy, Autistica, and was active at the formation of the UK Women’s Equality Party. She also founded and chairs The Rhodes Project, which evaluates the lives and careers of Rhodes Scholars (www.rhodesproject.com). Ann is a high-demand speaker on women’s legal issues worldwide, frequently contacted by the press on both sides of the Atlantic, and a prolific writer, authoring newspaper op-eds, scholarly articles, and several forthcoming books. She has provided legal and financial advice to, among others, former South African President Nelson Mandela; former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher; former US President Bill Clinton; former US First Lady, Secretary of State, and Presidential nominee Hillary Clinton; Queen Rania of Jordan; founder and former CEO of Microsoft Bill Gates; and European royalty.

EMPLOYMENT

Founder and Chair | McAllister Olivarius | London, UK and New York City, US| www.mcolaw.com | current

Formed in 1996, McAllister Olivarius has been in the fight for equality for decades. Dr. Olivarius was a plaintiff in the first case to establish that American universities are legally required to combat sexual harassment. She has since brought sexual misconduct and discrimination cases against universities, companies, and other institutions on both sides of the Atlantic. Today, the firm’s ground-breaking cases on online image-based abuse are now spurring legal reform in the UK and US.

- The London headquarters of the firm has received “Lexcel” accreditation for the high quality of its internal management and client care since 2011, and was described by its Lexcel assessor as being in the top 2.5% of all English law firms in this respect.
- Institutions sued by the firm for sexual misconduct include Yale University, Oxford University, University College London, Cambridge University, Time Magazine, University of California at Los Angeles, University of Miami, Mount Sinai Health Systems in New York City, Warwick University, and University of Rochester (a suit in which two of the firm’s clients were listed as TIME Magazine Persons of the Year). Dr Olivarius also advises universities on how best to support students who have been sexually harassed or assaulted.
- Through her work with the firm, Dr. Olivarius has secured legal reform ranging from the criminalization of revenge pornography in the UK in April 2015, to the extension of religious institutions’ liability for child abuse committed by their lower-ranking officials.
